Getting started

Preparation

- Print out the six required game pages
- Cut out all 42 memory pieces and the two banners
- Lay down the banners:
 - On the left, place the "Problems" banner
 - On the right, place the "Solutions" banner
- Arrange the 21 problem cards under or around the "Problems" banner, face down
- Do the same with the 21 solution cards under or around the "Solutions" banner, face down

Rules:

- Gather everyone around the table
- The game proceeds clockwise
- Players take turns flipping over one card from the "Problems" side and one from the "Solutions" side to find a matching pair
- If a player finds a matching pair, they keep the pair and get another turn
- If no match is found, the next player takes their turn
- The youngest player starts the game (or the one who's wearing Bitcoin swag)

Introduction:

- In this game, problems always lead to solutions. For example, an umbrella is the solution to not getting wet clothes when it rains. But what is Bitcoin the solution for? This game should explain in a playful way, that we first need to understand the problems to value the solutions.
- Your mission is to find the most matching pairs of problems and solutions. The player who collects the most pairs wins the title of "Problem Solver of the Day"!
- Want to make it even more exciting? You can agree on a special prize for the winner before starting the game!
- Good luck, and enjoy!
